Extremely helpful

This is a must read for anyone applying to residency. I am finishing up my 3rd year and wish I had read it in 1st or 2nd year. It gives excellent strategic advice (including getting exposure EARLY) and includes a great synopsis of the NRMP match data. It covers all of the important, stress-inducing components of the residency preparation and application process. This book will help you know what questions to ask and how to best use your resources for success. Highly recommend.

A Good Blueprint for Four, Crucial Years

By Nxs060

Most American medical schools have great advising and truly care about how their students perform in the residency match. That being said, this book still serves as a solid tool for entering medical students wishing to get somewhat of a head start prior to matriculation. It allows you to really hone in on what you need to do and challenges you to be proactive in deciding your eventual specialty while building your CV accordingly. The most invaluable sources for residency advice are, of course, residency directors of programs you are interested in. But before you meet them, peruse this book and know what kind of questions you need to be cognizant of to make yourself stand out in the match.

Most of the information regarding activities that you should engage in during your preclinical years was pretty straightforward and obvious. I'm not a huge fan of the book.
